About CLINIC + This Report

Defending migrants with faith and law books
Embracing the gospel value of welcoming the stranger, the Catholic Legal Immigration Network, Inc. promotes the dignity and protects the rights of immigrants in partnership with a dedicated network of about 335 Catholic and community immigration legal programs across 48 states and the District of Columbia. 36 new affiliates were welcomed in 2018 alone!

For more than 30 years, CLINIC has been on the cutting edge of training nonprofit immigration legal service providers to offer affordable, quality legal representation to immigrants. As the largest charitable legal immigration network in the nation, CLINIC provides substantive legal and program management training and resources, as well as advocacy support at local, state and national levels. CLINIC also has a team of immigration attorneys who specialize in religious worker immigration law, assisting Catholic archdioceses, dioceses and religious communities.

2018 Landscape of Immigration

CLINIC's 30+ years of preparing nonprofit agencies nationwide to provide legal guidance to immigrants came to dramatic fruition in 2017 and continued during 2018. The inauguration of President Donald Trump changed the immigration landscape for immigrants, advocates and legal practitioners.

Throughout the year, changes to immigration policy resulted in the separation of families at the U.S.-Mexico border, and images of children in cages made international headlines. Threats to asylum, Temporary Protected Status, Deferred Enforced Departure, Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals, known as DACA, in addition to proposed changes to the public charge rule threatened to curtail the rights and undermine the dignity of immigrants in the United States. In response, CLINIC designed and spearheaded new trainings, resources and initiatives to meet the needs of our network amid the changing legal environment. Affiliated agencies nationwide hosted Know Your Rights events to train and screen undocumented immigrants for potential paths to legal status, while advocacy campaigns defended the rights of immigrants and entire populations of people. This report highlights notable trends and outcomes connected to CLINIC's policy priorities and the immigration-related events of the year.

"CLINIC is a lifeline for people fleeing persecution, war and poverty or simply trying to keep their families together."

– Father Peter Daly, National Catholic Reporter, June 4

2018 OUTCOMES FROM MAJOR POLICY PRIORITIES

FAMILY SEPARATION AT THE U.S.-MEXICO BORDER/"ZERO TOLERANCE"

CLINIC monitored and advocated against the administration's policy of separating children from their parents and guardians beginning early in the year. Increased family separations began in the spring, when hundreds of children were separated from relatives, 100 of them age 4 or younger. Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced the administration's "zero tolerance" policy in May, which spiked family separations. The lack of a data-gathering system or reunification mechanisms meant parents had little to no information about their children's wellbeing or location.

U.S. District Judge Dana Sabraw of California blocked family separations in June. By the end of the year, approximately 15,000 children were in U.S. custody, and images of children in cages had reached international audiences, including the story of Jakelin Caal Maquin, a 7-year-old Guatemalan girl who died in federal immigration custody.

- CLINIC took the lead on explaining the devastating consequences the policy would have on families at the border and across the country during the summer.
- CLINIC staff and affiliates fought to reunite separated families at the U.S.-Mexico border and across the country.

"We encounter Jesus in those who are poor, rejected, or refugees. Do not let fear get in the way of welcoming our neighbor in need. #WithRefugees" – Pope Francis's June 20 response to the administration's "zero tolerance" policy

CLINIC Affiliates Across the Nation Volunteer at the Border

Amid increased media attention, Executive Director Jeanne Atkinson, CLINIC staffers, Board Chairman Bishop Kevin Vann of Orange and affiliates spent time with asylum seekers affected by new delays in admission to the United States and family separation. Atkinson and Bishop Vann paid brief visits to the port of entry in Nogales, Arizona, during CLINIC's Convening, while volunteers from affiliates spent a week or more in Nogales and at other border areas or detention centers to provide legal assistance. Donor support allowed CLINIC to offer stipends to dozens of legal professionals to volunteer at organizations, including Diocesan Migration and Refugee Services of El Paso and Catholic Charities of the Rio Grande Valley. More than 30 legal service providers from 22 programs completed their volunteer service by fall 2018.

"I was stunned that so few resources (attorneys) were present in the border area. We need to advocate for border towns," said Janet Horman, with Justice for Our Neighbors in Miami, who volunteered at the border in September.

Legacy

CLINIC has been equipping affiliate staffers, attorneys and legal representatives to reunite families for decades — we supported legal professionals to go to Dilley, Texas, to provide representation to detained mothers and children with the hope they could reunify with their loved ones in the United States through the Dilley Pro Bono Project since 2015.

TEMPORARY PROTECTED STATUS AND DEFERRED ENFORCED DEPARTURE: CLINIC LEADS THE FIGHT FOR THEM TO CONTINUE

CLINIC continued to lead national advocacy efforts related to protecting holders of Temporary Protected Status, or TPS, and Deferred Enforced Departure, or DED. TPS allows foreign nationals to remain in the United States if something catastrophic happened in their home country while they were here, such as war or a natural disaster, which prevents their safe return. Like TPS, DED also provides people with work authorization and protection from deportation.

Ten countries held TPS at the beginning of the Trump presidency. The administration's efforts to end TPS picked up steam in 2018. Following the terminations of TPS for Sudan and Nicaragua in late 2017, TPS was terminated for Haiti, El Salvador, Honduras and Nepal in 2018, affecting hundreds of thousands of people. The administration also extended, but did not redesignate, TPS for Syria, Yemen and Somalia in 2018. Redesignation allows people who more recently arrived from TPS-designated countries to apply for protection. Extension and redesignation had been granted at every decision point for Yemen, Somalia and South Sudan prior to the current administration.

Oversight and accountability: A growing body of evidence has questioned the lawfulness of the TPS actions. CLINIC provided the substantive content for congressional requests for investigations by the Department of Homeland Security Office of Inspector General and by the U.S. Government Accountability Office.

Training Spotlight

Webinar, Advising Clients About TPS Terminations, had 100+ attendees

Media Highlights

- CLINIC participated in the TPS for Somalia Twitter Townhall, moderated by UndocuBlack, a partner organization
- Twitter thread on the news that an injunction was granted for TPS for Sudan, Nicaragua, Haiti and El Salvador on Oct. 3, with #SaveTPS, had 119 likes and 37 retweets.

Legacy

After the earthquake devastated Haiti in 2010, CLINIC took the lead in asking the administration to offer TPS to Haitians; it took longer for the Obama administration to institute such protection, but it was granted Jan. 21, 2010.

2018 OUTCOMES FROM MAJOR POLICY PRIORITIES

DEFERRED ACTION FOR CHILDHOOD ARRIVALS

Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals was established in 2012 through a presidential executive order as a form of relief from deportation and to provide work authorization to nearly 700,000 immigrant youth, known as Dreamers. After Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced the termination of DACA in 2017, CLINIC supported affiliates with in-depth legal analysis, practice advisories, program tools and community outreach materials for DACA recipients through 2018.

Judge William Alsup of the Northern District of California issued a preliminary injunction requiring U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services to resume accepting certain DACA applications on Jan. 10, 2018. Additional courts also ruled against the government's action.

Voices of CLINIC Fellows: "You can go to college, get financial aid. You have to do it because you can... You don't have to be afraid that you won't be here tomorrow," Miriam Martinez wrote in April 26, 2017

PUBLIC CHARGE

The administration published a proposed rule that would impose new financial hurdles for immigrants who wish to apply for or maintain legal immigration status in the United States Oct. 10. The government bars immigrants on "public charge" grounds if it is believed that they would likely depend on public cash assistance or need long-term medical care at the government's expense. Under the proposed rule, the list of public benefits that would count against an immigrant would expand to include more non-cash resources, such as the Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher Program.

CLINIC advocated for people and organizations to express their opposition to the proposal by submitting comments. CLINIC joined the Protecting Immigrant Families Campaign, known as PIF, to stay current on the development of the rule, and coordinated with our faith-based partners to create strategies for the faith community. With NETWORK, CLINIC has co-lead the faith-based section of PIF.

CLINIC has provided information on the proposed changes to the definition of public charge, what benefits would be affected and how someone's use of public benefits might affect their immigration status.

SIGNATURE/LEGACY PROJECTS, INITIATIVES, EVENTS

Mexican Screening Project

The project launched in June 2018 to provide Know Your Rights presentations and screen Mexican nationals. Its goal has been to help unauthorized immigrants identify any potential eligibility for an immigration benefit. Participating CLINIC affiliates screened more than 1,500 Mexicans by mid-year.

Naturalization Campaigns / Initiatives

Naturalization has fluctuated between the first and second most-requested service from clients served by CLINIC affiliates. CLINIC has funded naturalization campaigns since its early years, beginning with the Levi Strauss Naturalization Campaign. That campaign, which began in 1992 in El Paso, was managed by former CLINIC Regional Director and longtime Board Member Lily Gutierrez. The Lily Gutierrez Memorial Scholarship, which supports recipients' attendance at our annual Convening, was created in her memory.

CLINIC has supported more than 30 organizations through the New Americans Campaign, or NAC, which has resulted in the completion of approximately 45,000 naturalization applications and has built naturalization capacity within organizations and communities since 2011. CLINIC's NAC sub-grantees helped complete more than 8,200 N-400 applications in 2018.

CLINIC's legacy and robust support for naturalization includes:

- providing nearly $15 million to affiliates for naturalization services;
- helping more than 60,000 vulnerable permanent residents become U.S. citizens through CLINIC's Emma Lazarus Project. The project raised $3 million to support 57 affiliates beginning in 1997 to help immigrants who are low income or have disabilities become citizens;
- promoting and implementing the workshop model for providing naturalization services.

"When I took the oath of citizenship, I can say it was one of the happiest days of my life — knowing that now I belong," said Fikile Ryder, who now does naturalization work with CLINIC Affiliate Catholic Charities of Pueblo under NAC.

2018 Annual Events milestones

- Convening (20+ year legacy): 480+ attendees, 380 had been to the event before, 160K reach on Twitter.
- Annual Immigration Law and Policy Conference (15-year legacy), in partnership with Georgetown Law and the Migration Policy Institute: 400+ attendees in 2018.

5 REASONS IMMIGRATION ADVOCACY MATTERS

1. To stand in solidarity with our immigrant brothers and sisters.
2. To empower immigrants to share their journey.
3. To hold our leaders accountable for decisions that affect our families, resources and well-being.
4. To raise awareness of the importance of protecting the rights and dignity of immigrants.
5. To speak up with and for our immigrant neighbors who often cannot speak up for themselves.

CLINIC in the News: Voices

Charles Wheeler, Director of Training, Litigation and Legal Support, on the announcement of the proposed public charge rule, The New York Times, Sept. 22, "The complex web of technicalities surrounding the new rule are difficult to understand, so the number of immigrants who withdraw from programs could exceed even the number who are subject to the rule."

Bishop Mark Seitz of El Paso, CLINIC Board Member, on justice for border communities and asylum seekers on Capitol Hill, Commonweal, March 8, "Please hear the stories of immigrants. Don't let the political morass in Washington take you over. Stand for something. Listen to your conscience."

Jennifer Riddle, Staff Attorney, ABC News, April 24, "It is critical for the TPS designation for Nepal to be extended, in light of the slow pace and numerous obstacles to reconstruction and recovery from the 2015 earthquake."

A season of changes: After five years leading CLINIC, Jeanne Atkinson announced that she would be stepping down as executive director in early 2019, to move to Italy. In November, CLINIC's Board of Directors announced they had hired Anna Marie Gallagher to succeed Atkinson, beginning in February 2019.

"I have the utmost confidence in Anna's ability to lead CLINIC. Her skills, knowledge and leadership are exactly what CLINIC needs at this time and I am excited to see what the future holds under her direction," said Atkinson to Catholic Philly / Catholic News Service, Nov. 28
