Volume 6 - Immigrants

Part J - Special Immigrant Juveniles

Chapter 1 - Purpose and Background

A. Purpose

Congress initially created the special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) classification to provide humanitarian protection for abused, neglected, or abandoned child immigrants eligible for long-term foster care. This protection evolved to include children who cannot reunify with one or both parents because of abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law. While there is no longer a requirement that a child be found eligible for long-term foster care, a juvenile court finding that reunification with one or both parents is not viable is still required for SIJ classification.[1]

Children in a variety of different circumstances may be eligible for SIJ classification, including but not limited to:

- Children who have been abused prior to their arrival in the United States, or while in the United States;
- Children in federal custody with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Refugee Resettlement, Unaccompanied Children’s Services Program;[2] or
- Children in the state child welfare system in the custody of a state agency (for example, foster care), or in the custody of a person or entity appointed by a state or juvenile court.

B. Background

Congress first established the SIJ immigrant visa classification in 1990. Since then, Congress has enacted several amendments. The table below provides an overview of major legislation related to SIJ classification.

- Expanded eligibility to include children whom a juvenile court has placed under the custody of a person or entity appointed by a state or juvenile court
- Provided age-out protections so that SIJ classification may not be denied to anyone, based solely on age, who was under 21 years of age on the date that he or she... | properly filed the SIJ petition, regardless of the petitioner’s age at the time of adjudication

- Simplified the consent requirement: The Secretary of Homeland Security now consents to the grant of SIJ classification instead of expressly consenting to the juvenile court order
- Altered the “specific consent” function for those children in federal custody by vesting this authority with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, rather than the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security
- Added a timeframe for adjudication: USCIS shall adjudicate SIJ petitions within 180 days of filing

C. Legal Authorities

- INA 101(a)(27)(J); 8 CFR 204.11(9) – Special immigrant status for certain children declared dependent on a juvenile court (special immigrant juvenile)
- INA 203(b)(4) – Certain special immigrants
- INA 204(a)(1)(G)(i) – Petitioning procedure
- INA 245(h) – Adjustment of special immigrant juveniles
- INA 287(h) – Protecting abused juveniles
- 8 CFR 205.2 – Revocation on notice

Footnotes

1. There is nothing in the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) that allows or directs juvenile courts to rely upon provisions of the INA or otherwise deviate from reliance upon state law and procedure in issuing state court orders.

5. See Pub. L. 103-416 (October 25, 1994).

9. Certain portions of the regulations have been superseded. This part provides up-to-date guidance.

Chapter 2 - Eligibility Requirements

A. Determining Eligibility

The special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) classification is available to children who have been subject to state juvenile court proceedings related to abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law. If a juvenile court has made certain findings, under state law, on dependency or custody, parental reunification, and the best interests of the child, then the child may be eligible for SIJ classification.

USCIS determines if the petitioner meets the requirements for SIJ classification by adjudicating a Petition for Amerasian, Widow(er), or Special Immigrant (Form I-360). USCIS’ adjudication of the SIJ petition includes review of the petition, the juvenile court order (or orders), and supporting evidence to determine if the petitioner is eligible for SIJ classification. USCIS generally defers to the court on matters of state law and does not go behind the juvenile court order to reweigh evidence and make independent determinations about abuse, neglect, or abandonment.

B. General

A petitioner must satisfy the following requirements to qualify for SIJ classification:
General Eligibility Requirements for SIJ Classification

<tr>

<tr>

</tr>
</tbody>

C. Age-out Protections

In general, a “child” is an unmarried person under 21 years of age for purposes of SIJ classification. USCIS considers the petitioner’s age at the time the SIJ petition is filed when determining whether the petitioner has met the age requirement.

If a petitioner was under 21 years of age on the date of the proper filing of Form I-360, USCIS cannot deny SIJ classification solely because the petitioner is older than 21 years of age at the time of adjudication.

D. Juvenile Court Order

To be eligible for SIJ classification, a juvenile court in the United States must have issued order (or orders) with the following findings:

- Dependency or Custody – Declares the petitioner dependent on the court, or legally commits or places the petitioner under the custody of either a state agency or department, or a person or entity appointed by a state or juvenile court;

- Parental Reunification – Declares, under the state child welfare law, that the petitioner cannot reunify with one or both of the petitioner’s parents prior to aging out of the juvenile court’s jurisdiction due to abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law; and

- Best Interests – Finds that it would not be in the petitioner’s best interest to be returned (to a placement) in the petitioner’s, or his or her parent’s, country of nationality or last habitual residence.

1. Dependency or Custody

The petitioner must be the subject of a juvenile court order that declares him or her dependent on a juvenile court, or legally commits to or places the petitioner under the custody of either an agency or department of a state, or a person or entity appointed by a state or juvenile court. Placing the petitioner “under the custody of” a person requires physical custody. A qualifying court-appointed custodial placement could be with one parent, if reunification with the other parent is found to be not viable due to that parent’s abuse, neglect, or abandonment of the petitioner.

Court-ordered dependency or custodial placements that are intended to be temporary generally do not qualify for the purpose of establishing eligibility for SIJ classification.\(^6\) A court-appointed custodian that is acting as a temporary guardian or caretaker of a child, taking on all or some of the responsibilities of a parent,\(^7\) is not considered a custodian for purposes of establishing SIJ eligibility.\(^8\)

2. Parental Reunification\(^9\)

The juvenile court must find that reunification with one or both parents is not viable due to abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under the relevant state child welfare laws. Lack of viable reunification generally means that the court intends its finding that the child cannot reunify with his or her parent (or parents) remains in effect until the child ages out of the juvenile court’s jurisdiction.\(^10\) The temporary unavailability of a child’s parent does not meet the eligibility requirement that family reunification is not viable. However, actual termination of parental rights is not required.

The findings must be based upon the person (or persons) who is the petitioner’s parent (or parents)\(^11\) under state law. If the juvenile court order establishes that the person (or persons) is the petitioner’s parent (or parents), USCIS generally considers this requirement met. However, if the record does not establish that the person (or persons) is the petitioner’s parent (or parents), USCIS may request additional evidence. For example, if the findings are based on a father not listed on the petitioner’s birth certificate, a determination that the claimed father is the father under state law should be established in the juvenile court order.

3. Best Interests

Juvenile courts do not have the authority to make decisions on the removal or deportation of a child to another country. However, it must be determined by the juvenile court (or in administrative proceedings recognized by the juvenile court) that it would not be in the best interest of the petitioner to be returned to the country of nationality or last habitual residence of the petitioner or his or her parents. Accordingly, this requires a determination by the juvenile court that a placement in the child’s, or his or her parents’, country of nationality or last habitual residence is not in the child’s best interest.

While the standards for making best interests determinations may vary between states, a best interests determination generally involves the deliberation that courts undertake under state law when deciding what types of services, actions, and orders will best serve a child, as well as a deliberation regarding who is best suited to take care of a child.\(^12\) The court’s finding that a particular custodial placement is the best alternative available to the petitioner in the United States does not necessarily establish that a placement in the petitioner’s country of nationality would not be in the child’s best interest.\(^13\) USCIS defers to the juvenile court in making this determination and as such does not require the court to conduct any analysis other than what is required under state law.

4. Validity of Order

Issued under State Law

The juvenile court order must have been properly issued under state law to be valid for the purposes of establishing eligibility for SIJ classification. This includes the need for the juvenile court to follow their state laws on jurisdiction.\(^14\) For example, a juvenile court may not be able to take jurisdiction and issue a dependency or custody order for a juvenile who is 18 years of age or older even though the juvenile may file his or her petition with USCIS until the age of 21. There is nothing in USCIS guidance that should be construed as instructing juvenile courts on how to apply their own state law.

Continuing Jurisdiction
In general, the petitioner must remain under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court at the time of the filing and adjudication of the SIJ petition, subject to some exceptions discussed below. If the petitioner is no longer under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court for a reason related to their underlying eligibility for SIJ classification, the petitioner is not eligible for SIJ classification. This may include cases in which the petitioner is no longer under the jurisdiction of the court because:

- The court vacated or terminated its findings that made the petitioner eligible because of subsequent evidence or information that invalidated the findings; or

- The court reunified the petitioner with the parent with whom the court previously deemed reunification was not viable because of abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law.

However, this requirement does not apply if the juvenile court jurisdiction ended solely because:

- The petitioner was adopted, or placed in a permanent guardianship; or

- The petitioner was the subject of a valid order that was terminated based on age before or after filing the SIJ petition (provided the petitioner was under 21 years of age at the time of filing the SIJ petition).[L5]

A petitioner with a juvenile court order who moves to the jurisdiction of a different juvenile court may need to either submit evidence that the petitioner is still under the jurisdiction of the court that issued the order or submit a new court order.

A juvenile court order does not necessarily terminate because of a petitioner’s move to another court’s jurisdiction. In general, a court maintains jurisdiction when it orders the child placed in a different state or makes a custody determination and the legal custodian relocates to a new jurisdiction.[L8]. If, however, a child relocates to a new jurisdiction and is not living in a court ordered placement or with the court ordered custodian, then the petitioner must submit:

- Evidence that the court is still exercising jurisdiction over the petitioner; or

- A new juvenile court order from the court that has jurisdiction.[L7]

If the original order is terminated due to the relocation of the child but another order is issued in a new jurisdiction, USCIS considers the dependency or custody to have continued through the time of adjudication of the SIJ petition, even if there is a lapse between court orders.

5. USCIS Consent

The William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2008 (TVPRA 2008)[L8] simplified but did not remove the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) consent requirement. In order to consent, USCIS must review the juvenile court order to conclude that the request for SIJ classification is bona fide, which means that the juvenile court order was sought to obtain relief from abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law, and not primarily or solely to obtain an immigration benefit.[L9]. The court ordered dependency or custodial placement of the child is the relief being sought from the juvenile court, and the factual basis of each of the required findings is evidence that the request for SIJ classification is bona fide.

USCIS relies on the expertise of the juvenile court in making child welfare decisions and does not reweigh the evidence to determine if the child was subjected to abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law. In order to exercise the statutorily mandated DHS consent function, USCIS requires that the juvenile court order or other supporting evidence contain or provide a reasonable factual basis for each of the findings.
necessary for classification as a SIJ. The evidence needed does not have to be overly detailed, but must confirm that the juvenile court made an informed decision in order to be considered “reasonable.” USCIS generally consents to the grant of SIJ classification when the order includes or is supplemented by a reasonable factual basis for all of the required findings.

USCIS recognizes that there may be some immigration motive for seeking the juvenile court order. For example, the court may make findings in separate hearings and the petitioner may request an order that compiles the findings of several orders into one order to establish eligibility for SIJ classification. A special order issued to help clarify the findings that were made so that USCIS can determine the petitioner’s eligibility for SIJ classification does not mean that the order is not bona fide.

E. HHS Consent

If a petitioner is currently in the custody of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and seeks a juvenile court order that also alters his or her custody status or placement, HHS must consent to the juvenile court’s jurisdiction. HHS consent is not required if the order simply restates the petitioner’s current placement.

F. Inadmissibility and Waivers

Grounds of inadmissibility do not apply to the adjudication of the SIJ petition. Therefore, a petitioner does not need to apply for a waiver of any applicable grounds of inadmissibility in order to be eligible for SIJ classification.

G. Family Members

Unlike some other immigrant visa petitions, SIJ classification does not allow the petitioner’s family members to be included on the petition as derivative beneficiaries. SIJ petitioners that have adjusted status to that of a lawful permanent resident may petition for qualifying family members through the family-based immigration process. However, a petitioner who adjusts status as a result of an SIJ classification may not confer an immigration benefit to his or her natural or prior adoptive parents. This prohibition also applies to a non-abusive, custodial parent, if applicable.

Footnotes

1. USCIS also adjudicates the Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status (Form I-485), which determines eligibility for adjustment of status to lawful permanent residence. See Volume 7, Adjustment of Status, Part F, Special Immigrant-Based (EB-4) Adjustment, Chapter 7, Special Immigrant Juvenile [7 USCIS-PM F.7].

2. USCIS interprets the use of the term “child” in Section 235(d)(6) of the William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2008 (TVPRA 2008), Pub. L. 110-457, 122 Stat. 5044, 5080 (December 23, 2008), to refer to the definition of child in INA 101(b)(1), which states that a child is an unmarried person under 21 years of age.

4. For information on which state courts USCIS considers a juvenile court, see Chapter 3, Documentation and Evidence, Section A, Juvenile Court Orders and Administrative Documents, Subsection 1, Qualifying Juvenile Court Proceedings [6 USCIS-PM J.3(A)(1)].

5. This requires that the petitioner has been declared dependent upon a juvenile court located in the United States in accordance with state law governing such declarations of dependency, while he or she is in the United States and under the jurisdiction of the court. See 8 CFR 204.11(g)(3). For an example of state law governing declarations of dependency, see California Welfare and Institutions Code Section 300.

6. USCIS generally requires that the court order be valid at the time of filing and must determine that the court intends that the child will not reunify with at least one parent until the child reaches the age of majority. See 8 CFR 204.11(g)(2). See Subsection 2, Parental Reunification [6 USCIS-PM J.2(D)(2)].

9. The TVPRA 2008 replaced the need for a juvenile court to deem a juvenile eligible for long-term foster care with a requirement that the juvenile court find reunification with one or both parents not viable. The term “eligible for long-term foster care” is defined at 8 CFR 204.11(a), as requiring that family reunification no longer be viable and that this determination would be expected to remain in place until the child reached the age of majority. USCIS interprets the TVPRA changes as a clarification that petitioners do not need to be eligible for or placed in foster care and that they may be reunified with one parent or other family members. However, USCIS requires that the reunification no longer be a viable option with at least one parent, and USCIS maintains that the court’s determination is meant to be in place until the child reaches the age of majority. See 8 CFR 204.11(a). See Section 235(d)(1)(A) of TVPRA 2008, Pub. L. 110-457, 122 Stat. 5044, 5079 (December 23, 2008).

10. For example, when parental reunification is no longer the goal of the child welfare authority’s plan for a permanent living situation for the child (known as a “permanency plan”).

11. The term “parent” does not encompass a step-parent unless the step-parent is recognized as the petitioner’s legal parent under state law, such as when a step-parent has adopted the petitioner.

14. For an order to be considered an eligible juvenile court order, the court must have jurisdiction under state law to make judicial determinations about the care and custody of juveniles. See 8 CFR 204.11(a). See Perez-Olano v. Holder, Case No. CV 05-3604 (C.D. Cal. 2005) at paragraph 8.

16. Some states have adopted the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA) and the Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC). The UCCJEA is a Uniform Act drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. The UCCJEA is effective only upon adoption by state legislatures. See Sections 201-204 of UCCJEA available at the Uniform Law Commission website on UCCJEA. ICPC is a binding contract between member jurisdictions. The ICPC establishes uniform legal and administrative procedures governing the interstate placement of children. Each state and the District of Columbia have enacted the provisions of the ICPC under state law.

17. See 8 CFR 204.11(c)(5).

21. For discussion on the applicability of inadmissibility grounds to SIJ-based applicants for adjustment of status, see Volume 7, Adjustment of Status, Part F, Special Immigrant-Based (EB-4) Adjustment, Chapter 7, Special Immigrant Juvenile [7 USCIS-PM E.7].

Chapter 3 - Documentation and Evidence

A petitioner seeking special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) classification must submit all of the following documentation to USCIS:

- Petition for Amerasian, Widow(er), or Special Immigrant (Form I-360);[^1]

- A copy of the petitioner’s birth certificate or other evidence of the petitioner’s age;[^2]

- Copies of the juvenile court order (or orders) and administrative document (or orders), as applicable, that establish eligibility and evidence of the factual basis for the juvenile court’s findings; and

- A copy of U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) consent, if applicable.

The petitioner may file Form I-360 alone or concurrently with his or her Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status (Form I-485), if there is an immigrant visa currently available for the SIJ immigrant classification and he or she is otherwise eligible.[^2]

A. Juvenile Court Orders and Administrative Documents

1. Qualifying Juvenile Court Proceedings

A juvenile court is defined as a U.S. court having jurisdiction under state law to make judicial determinations about the custody and care of children.[^4] The title and the type of court that may meet the definition of a juvenile court will vary from state to state. Examples of state courts that may meet this definition include: juvenile, family, dependency, orphans, guardianship, probate, and delinquency courts.

The juvenile court may make the required determination that it is not in the petitioner’s best interest to be returned (to a placement) in the petitioner’s or his or her parent’s country of nationality or last habitual residence. However, other judicial or administrative bodies authorized or recognized by a juvenile court may also make this required determination. If a particular juvenile court establishes or endorses an alternate process for a best interest determination, a finding from that process may satisfy this requirement.

2. Findings[^5]

The juvenile court order (or orders) must provide the required findings regarding dependency or custody, parental revocation, and best interests. These findings may be made in a single juvenile court order or in separate juvenile court orders. The order (or orders) should use language establishing that the specific findings (conclusions of law) were made under state law. The order (or orders) should not just mirror or cite to immigration law and regulations. The juvenile court order may use different legal terms than those found in the INA as long as the findings have the same meaning as the requirements for SIJ classification.[6]

There is nothing in USCIS guidance that should be construed as instructing juvenile courts on how to apply their own state law. Juvenile courts should follow their state laws on issues such as when to exercise their authority, evidentiary standards, and due process.

The language of the order may vary based on individual state child welfare law. If a juvenile court order makes the findings based upon a state law similar to abuse, neglect, or abandonment,[7] the petitioner must establish that the nature and elements of the state law are indeed similar to the nature and elements of laws on abuse, neglect, or abandonment. Petitioners are encouraged to submit the juvenile court’s findings of how the basis is similar to abuse, neglect, or abandonment and copies of the relevant laws.

3. Factual Basis and USCIS Consent

Template orders that simply recite the immigration statute or regulatory language are generally not sufficient.
Orders that have the necessary findings or rulings and include, or are supplemented by, the factual basis for the court’s findings (for example, the judicial findings of fact) are usually sufficient to establish eligibility. If a petitioner cannot obtain a court order that includes facts that establish a factual basis for all of the required findings, USCIS may request evidence of the factual basis for the court’s findings.

USCIS does not require specific documents to establish the factual basis or the entire record considered by the court. However, the burden is on the petitioner to provide the factual basis for the court’s findings. Examples of documents that a petitioner may submit to USCIS that may support the factual basis for the court order include:

- Any supporting documents submitted to the juvenile court, if available;

- The petition for dependency or complaint for custody or other documents which initiated the juvenile court proceedings;

- Affidavits summarizing the evidence presented to the court and records from the judicial proceedings;
  and

- Affidavits or records that are consistent with the findings made by the court.

4. Supporting Evidence

The order or supporting evidence should specifically indicate:

- With whom the child is placed (for example, the name of the person, or entity, or agency if the child is adjudicated dependent) and the factual basis for this finding;

- Which of the specific grounds (abuse, neglect, abandonment, or similar basis under state law) apply to which of the parent (or parents) and the factual basis for the court’s findings on non-viability of parental reunification; and

- The factual basis for the determination that it is not in the petitioner’s best interest to return to (a placement in) the petitioner’s or his or her parents’ country of nationality or last habitual residence (for example, addressing family reunification with family that remains in the child’s country of nationality or last habitual residence).

B. Limitations on Additional Evidence

USCIS is mindful that there are often confidentiality rules that govern disclosure of records from juvenile-related proceedings. For this reason, officers generally do not request information or documents from sources other than the SIJ petitioner or his or her legal representative.[8]

Children often do not share personal accounts of their family life with an unknown adult until they have had the opportunity to form a trusting relationship with that adult. Therefore, officers exercise careful judgment when considering statements made by children at the time of initial apprehension by immigration or law enforcement officers to question the findings made by the juvenile court.

Additionally, the juvenile court may make child welfare placement, custody, and best interest decisions that differ from the child’s stated intentions at the time of apprehension. However, if there is significant contradictory information in the file that the juvenile court was likely not aware of or that may impact whether a reasonable factual basis exists for the court’s findings, officers may request additional evidence from the petitioner or his or her legal representative.

However, officers may not require or request an SIJ petitioner to contact the person or family members of the person who allegedly abused, neglected, or abandoned the SIJ petitioner.[9]

Footnotes

1. See Instructions for Form I-360. There is no fee to file Form I-360 to seek SIJ classification.

2. For more information on evidence that can be used to provide proof of age see 8 CFR 204.11(d)(1).

3. For information on SIJ-based adjustment of status, see Volume 7, Adjustment of Status, Part F, Special Immigrant-Based (EB-4) Adjustment, Chapter 7, Special Immigrant Juvenile [7 USCIS-PM F.7].

4. See 8 CFR 204.11(a).

5. The term “findings” refers to the conclusions of law.

7. For example, under Connecticut law, a child may be found “uncared for” if the child is “homeless” or if his or her “home cannot provide the specialized care that the physical, emotional or mental condition of the child requires.” See Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. section 46b-120(9). “Uncared for” may be similar to abuse, neglect, or abandonment because children found “uncared for” are equally entitled to juvenile court intervention and protection. The outcomes for children found “uncared for” are the same as they are for children found abused, neglected, or abandoned. See Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. section 46b-120(8)(9); 121(a).

8. USCIS Fraud Detection and National Security (FDNS) officers conducting fraud investigations follow separate FDNS procedures on documentation requests.

Chapter 4 - Adjudication

A. Jurisdiction

USCIS has sole jurisdiction over petitions for special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) classification.[1] Provided the petitioner is otherwise eligible, classification as an SIJ establishes eligibility to apply for adjustment of status.[2]

B. Expeditious Adjudication

USCIS generally adjudicates SIJ petitions within 180 days.[3] The 180-day timeframe begins on the Notice of Action (Form I-797) receipt date. If the petitioner has not submitted sufficient evidence to establish his or her eligibility for SIJ classification, the clock stops the day USCIS sends a request for additional evidence and resumes the day USCIS receives the requested evidence from the petitioner.[4]

The 180-day timeframe applies only to the initial adjudication of the SIJ petition. The requirement does not extend to the adjudication of any motion or appeal filed after a denial of a SIJ petition.

C. Interview

1. Determining Necessity of Interview

USCIS has discretion to interview SIJ petitioners for the purposes of adjudicating the SIJ petition.[5] USCIS recognizes the vulnerable nature of SIJ petitioners and generally conducts interviews of SIJ petitioners when an interview is deemed necessary. USCIS conducts a full review of the petition and supporting evidence to determine whether an interview may be warranted. USCIS will generally not require an interview if the record contains sufficient information and evidence to approve the petition without an in-person assessment. However, USCIS retains the discretion to interview SIJ petitioners for the purposes of adjudicating the SIJ petition, as appropriate.

2. Conducting the Interview

Given the vulnerable nature of SIJ petitioners and the hardships they may face because of the loss of parental support, USCIS strives to establish a child-friendly interview environment if an interview is scheduled. During an interview, officers avoid questioning the petitioner about the details of the abuse, neglect, or abandonment suffered, because these issues are handled by the juvenile court. Officers generally focus the interview on resolving issues related to the eligibility requirements, including age.

The petitioner may bring a trusted adult to the interview in addition to an attorney or representative. The trusted adult may serve as a familiar source of comfort to the petitioner, but should not interfere with the interview process or coach the petitioner during the interview. Given potential human trafficking and other concerns, officers assess the appropriateness of the adult’s attendance in the interview and observe the adult’s interaction with the child. When appropriate, the officer may interview the child without that adult present.

D. Requests for Evidence

Additional evidence may be requested at the discretion of the officer if needed to determine eligibility.\(^6\) To provide petitioners an opportunity to address concerns before issuing a denial, officers generally issue a Request for Evidence (RFE) or a Notice of Intent to Deny (NOID), where the evidence is insufficient to approve the petition. The officer may request additional evidence for reasons such as, but not limited to:

- The record lacks the required dependency or custody, parental reunification, or best interest findings;
- It is unclear if the order was made by a juvenile court or in accordance with state law;
- The evidence provided does not establish a reasonable factual basis for the findings;
- The record contains evidence or information that directly and substantively conflicts with the evidence or information that was the basis for the court order; or
- Additional evidence is needed to determine eligibility.

E. Decision

1. Approval

The Secretary of Homeland Security must consent to the grant of SIJ classification. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) delegates this authority to USCIS. Therefore, USCIS approval of the SIJ petition is evidence of DHS consent. USCIS notifies petitioners in writing upon approval of the petition.\(^7\)

2. Denial

If the petitioner does not provide necessary evidence or does not meet the eligibility requirements, USCIS may deny the Form I-360 petition. If USCIS denies the SIJ petition, USCIS provides the petitioner with a written denial which includes a detailed basis for the denial.\[8\]. An SIJ petitioner may appeal an adverse decision or request that USCIS reopen or reconsider a USCIS decision.\[9\]. The denial notice includes instructions for filing a Notice of Appeal or Motion (Form I-290B).

3. Revocation

Automatic Revocation

An approved SIJ petition is automatically revoked as of the date of approval if any one of the circumstances below occurs before USCIS issues a decision on the petitioner’s application for adjustment of status:\[10\]

- Marriage of the petitioner;
- Reunification of the petitioner with one or both parents by virtue of a juvenile court order,\[11\] where a juvenile court previously deemed reunification with that parent, or both parents, not viable due to abuse, neglect, abandonment, or a similar basis under state law;\[12\] or
- Reversal by the juvenile court of the determination that it would not be in the petitioner’s best interest to be returned (to a placement) in the petitioner’s, or his or her parent’s, country of nationality or last habitual residence.

USCIS issues a notice to the petitioner of such revocation of the SIJ petition.\[13\]

Revocation on Notice

In addition, USCIS, with notice, may revoke an approved petition for SIJ classification for good and sufficient cause such as fraud.\[14\]. In these instances, USCIS issues a Notice of Intent to Revoke (NOIR) and provides the petitioner an opportunity to offer evidence in support of the petition and in opposition to the grounds alleged for revocation of the approval.\[15\]

Footnotes

1. See Petition for Amerasian, Widow(er), or Special Immigrant (Form I-360).

2. See Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status (Form I-485). Generally, an applicant may only apply to USCIS for adjustment of status if there is a visa number available for the special immigrant classification (EB-4), and the applicant is not in removal proceedings. If an SIJ is in removal proceedings, the immigration court must terminate the proceedings before USCIS can adjudicate the adjustment application. Conversely, the applicant may seek adjustment of status with the immigration court based on USCIS’ approval of the SIJ petition. For more information, see Volume 7, Adjustment of Status, Part A, Adjustment of Status Policies and Procedures [7 USCIS-PM A], Part B, 245(a) Adjustment [7 USCIS-PM B], and Part F, Special Immigrant-Based (EB-4) Adjustment, Chapter 7, Special Immigrant Juveniles [7 USCIS-PM F.7].

9. See 8 CFR 103.3. See 8 CFR 103.5.

11. Revocation will not occur, however, where the juvenile court places the petitioner with the parent who was not the subject of the nonviable reunification determination.

12. TVPRA 2008 replaced the need for a juvenile court to deem a juvenile eligible for long-term foster care with a requirement that the juvenile court find reunification with one or both parents not viable. The term “eligible for long-term foster care” is defined at 8 CFR 204.11(a) as requiring that family reunification no longer be viable. USCIS interprets this change as clarifying that the child does not need to be eligible for or placed in foster care. USCIS also views this change as modifying the regulation that requires auto-revocation upon the termination of the beneficiary’s eligibility for long-term foster care. A petition will be revoked if reunification with the parent is now viable where a juvenile court previously deemed reunification with that parent not viable. See Section 235(d)(1)(A) of TVPRA 2008, Pub. L. 110-457, 122 Stat. 5044, 5079 (December 23, 2008).

Chapter 5 - Appeals, Motions to Reopen, and Motions to Reconsider

A. General

A petitioner may submit a Notice of Appeal or Motion (Form I-290B), with the appropriate filing fee or a request for a fee waiver, to file:[1]

- An appeal with the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO);
- A motion to reconsider a USCIS decision (made by the AAO, a field office, or a service center); or
- A motion to reopen a USCIS decision (made by the AAO, a field office, or a service center).

The petitioner must file the appeal or motion within 30 days of the denial or dismissal, or 33 days if the denial or dismissal decision was sent by mail.[2] If the appeal relates to a revocation of an approved special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) petition, the appeal must be filed within 15 calendar days after service of the decision, or 18 days if the decision was sent by mail.[3] There is no exception to the filing period for appeals and motions to reconsider.

For a motion to reopen, USCIS may excuse the petitioner’s failure to file before this period expires where the petitioner demonstrates that the delay was reasonable and beyond his or her control.[4]

B. Requirements for Perez-Olano Litigation Class Members[5]

Perez-Olano v. Holder is a class-action lawsuit filed on behalf of certain foreign national juveniles who may have been eligible for SIJ classification or SIJ-based adjustment of status but whose SIJ petition or adjustment application was denied or revoked for certain reasons. Certain persons whose petition for SIJ classification,[6] or SIJ-based application for adjustment of status,[7] was denied or revoked on or after May 13, 2005, may be eligible to file a motion to reopen the denied or revoked SIJ petition or SIJ-based application for adjustment of status.

A class action member may file a motion to reopen if his or her SIJ petition or SIJ-based application for adjustment of status was denied or revoked on account of:
Age if, at the time the class member filed a complete petition for SIJ classification, he or she was under 21 years of age;

Dependency status if, at the time the class member filed a complete petition for SIJ classification, he or she was the subject of a valid dependency order that was subsequently terminated based on age; or

Specific consent, if the petitioner did not receive a grant of HHS specific consent before going before the juvenile court and the court order did not alter the petitioner’s HHS custody status or placement.

There is also a stipulation to the settlement agreement involving cases in which SIJ petitions or SIJ-based applications for adjustment of status were denied, terminated, or revoked on or after December 15, 2010 because the applicant’s state court dependency order had expired at the time of the filing. The requirements and process for a class member to request that his or her case be reopened under the stipulation differ from requirements under the original Settlement Agreement.[8]

Under the stipulation, USCIS will not deny, revoke, or terminate an SIJ petition or SIJ-based adjustment of status if, at the time of filing the SIJ petition, the applicant:

- Is or was under 21 years of age, unmarried, and otherwise eligible; and
- Is the subject of a valid dependency order or was the subject of a valid dependency order that was terminated based on age prior to filing.

Chapter 6 - Data

USCIS compiles and makes available to the public annual reports disclosing the number of special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) petitions received, approved, and denied. The number includes the filing and adjudication of SIJ petitions under the Settlement Agreement, as well as the filing and adjudication of regularly filed SIJ petitions. To ensure accuracy of information, officers must promptly enter all decisions on all petitions and motions related to SIJ into the relevant systems.

POLICY ALERT – Special Immigrant Juvenile Classification and Special Immigrant-Based Adjustment of Status

October 26, 2016

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) is issuing policy guidance regarding the special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) classification and special immigrant-based (EB-4) adjustment of status, including adjustment based on classification as a special immigrant religious worker, SIJ, and G-4 international organization or NATO-6 employee or family member, among others.
